Description

Resting Bell is really happy to welcome herzog, a.k.a. Bill Bawden and his latest EP "first summer and the running dream". Bill's previous releases on Serein were the first netaudio-works I got in touch with. And you also might know him from his fantastic release on 12rec. So what an honour to do a herzog-release here on Resting Bell.

"first summer and the running dream" contains 5 tracks with a complete duration of 30 minutes. Compared to his earlier works "first summer..." has a more droning, a bit distorted character. The sounds are layered very softly and sublime to a very harmonic composition. The overall mood is quite laid-back with noisy, distorted splinters. The noisy elements are getting stronger to the end of the EP but it leaves still a very harmonic picture.

For me a perfect soundtrack of the season. Watching raindrops on the window and feeling wind in the hair.
